

About My Books

I have had a very painful life with lots of dysfunctions that had their origin in childhood. It was necessary for me to make drastic changes in my life in order to go on living. I am now 21 years into my life-change program. It never ends. In the early days and even years of it, I was learning so many new things it was necessary to write about them in order to explore them deeper and to see how they would fit my life. In doing so came the application, the medicine and the bandages that healed old wounds.

I began to write articles, poems, and do public speaking to give to others what I was learning for and about myself. I could see that others were struggling too. I decided that I could do better than have something to blame it on. I could help others with what I was learning. I could gently persuade others to look inwardly, for there-in lies the answers to all of life's challenges.

Thirteen years into my life-change program I discovered the Internet and email with the help of friends. And a few years later I finally learned how to make web sites and publish e-Books. My articles are all short and simple; and the more I live the more I learn about how to make them beautiful and presentable. So even today I am revising them with new formatting, indexes, pictures, book covers, ISBN's, and such.

I long to give people what they can use to make our collective lives better, to make our world better all the way to the end of it. And for some of my friends, their world has ended before mine and I hope my life has touched theirs in a way that was beneficial.

It doesn't take labored reading, and trying to remember, over a thousand-page book to make life-changes. My books are short and direct, most only a few pages; and they are very humorous, pleasurable reading in many cases. And they are inexpensive. I'm still learning how to let people know about them. Maybe you will help with that.
